

Kevin F. Harris is a partner whose practice focuses on advising insurance carriers in a variety of complex disputes involving commercial general liability, products liability, professional liability, and cyber liability. Kevin is a contributor to BatesCarey's Opioid Coverage Task Force, which is dedicated to monitoring and analyzing lawsuits filed by state and local governments nationwide against pharmaceutical manufacturers, distributors, and retail pharmacies in order to assess insurance coverage issues and the risk exposure of BatesCarey's clients and the insurance industry at large.

Prior to joining BatesCarey, Kevin gained significant international business and legal experience while working in China for Harley-Davidson Motorcycle Co. in Shanghai, and in the Beijing offices of the American Chamber of Commerce in China.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

Colemon v. Westport Ins. Co., No. 2023-SC-0497-DG, 2025 WL 3768513, at *1 (Ky. Dec. 18, 2025) (to be published) The Kentucky Supreme Court affirmed appellate ruling that defeated a $28 million insurance claim and established Kentucky precedent that malicious prosecution "personal injury" "occurs" only on date of wrongful charging, and that insurance is not continuously triggered during the subsequent years of suffering and deprivation of rights.

Publix Super Markets, Inc. v. ACE Prop. and Cas. Ins. Co., et al., No. 8:22-cv-2569 (MD Fla. Oct. 29, 2024) Achieved ruling that multi-billion-dollar governmental opioid lawsuits present generalized economic losses and do not seek to impose covered liability for damages "because of bodily injury" where there is no claim to prove causation or damages for any individual's injury.
